Vol. 3—No. 59 GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1923 THREE CENTS

Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Good Men Must Be Forced to Run for City Council

MARCH 21ST is the latest date for the filing of petitions of candidates for the office of councilman of Glendale.

The election has been set for April 10.

At this election two councilmen are to be selected to fill the places of Councilmen Stephenson and Lapham, whose terms expire.

* * *

WHILE a number of citizens have signified intentions of becoming candidates, the race is still open for entries.

With the sewer and transportation problems before us, Glendale is facing the most important issues of its existence and the proper solutions of these problems maen much to Glendale of the future.

And the solutions begin with the selection of wise councilmen.

* * *

THE citizens of Glendale should prevail upon men of vision and business ability to take upon themselves the responsibility of managing the affairs of our city by becoming candidates. Their election would be assured.

* * *

There seems to be a difference of opinion among the merchants of Glendale as to which is preferable from a business standpoint:

A low or a high car fare to Los Angeles?

It is difficult for us to accept any argument in favor of a high car fare.

Those in favor of it base their arguments on their belief that a high fare to Los Angeles will keep Glendale people from going to Los Angeles to trade. This is surely a narrow way of looking at the proposition.

High fares undoubtedly retard growth and retard growth is bound to have its effect on business.

As we see it the car fare has some effect on the number of trips taken to Los Angeles, but not on the quantity of goods purchased for shoppers buy less often but make larger purchases when they do buy.

The Glendale merchants in favor of the high fare must accept the fact that we are only thirty minutes from Broadway and adjust their business to meet the Los Angeles conditions and not endeavor to increase their business with a high car fare club.

If Glendale merchants and the citizens as a whole will get together on this proposition they can probably force the P. E. to grant a rate that is in line with the revenue received and compel it to quit discriminating against a line which is paying well now and has great promise for the future.

The American people are not the kind to sit idly by and permit a condition such as now exists in Glendale to last long.

Is the Pacific Electric going to kill "the Goose That Lays the Golden Egg?" or is it going to help Glendale grow into a large city by granting a lower rate?

$500,000 SCHOOL BOND ISSUE SUPPORTED BY THE ADVANCEMENT ASSOCIATION

First Meeting in Several Weeks Is Held at Harriett Mae Tea Room and Many Reports Are Made by the Chairmen

After a vacation of several weeks, the Glendale Advancement Association held a luncheon meeting Thursday noon at the Harriett Mae Tea Room, corner of Maryland and Harvard.

W. E. Hewitt, as chairman of the school advisory committee of fifteen, was the first to address the organization with a plea for the support of the $500,000 bond issue to be voted upon March 15th, for grammar school buildings, urging all present to go to the polls. The association voted an unanimous indorsement of the issue. Charles Stanley of the railroad committee passed his obligation to report to P. L. Hatch and Val Haresnape of the Glendale-Montrose railroad, who were present.

Mr. Haresnape stated that since the $25,000 bonus is in a shape of which he can approve, the road's budget for the contemplated extension and electrification will be available as soon as contract is signed between the two companies and approved by the Railroad Commission, and as soon as franchises are secured from the city councils of Glendale and Los Angeles, which will probably be inside of thirty days. As soon as these things are concluded, he declared, contracts will be let for work and materials.

In response to the inquiry of Dr. C. A. Stuart, Mr. Haresnape said it would be a single track line until such time as the traffic required a double track.

Mr. Stanley and Dr. Stuart reported for the postoffice committee that Postmaster Jackson is waiting to hear from Washington relative to the branch at Glendale and Broadway.

Dr. Stuart also reported concerning the paving of Glendale avenue, stating that petitions had been presented to the city council several weeks ago and now, he understood, the council desires to know the kind of pavement petitioners want; that Peter Ferry had circulated and presented to the council a petition calling for six-inch concrete, which appeared to be the most favored by property owners. The doctor added that after a personal investigation he had been converted to concrete and believes it is the thing for that thoroughfare. On motion made by Mr. Kinch and amended by R. M. Brown, the association instructed the paving committee to investigate the different kinds of pavement and report at the next meeting.

President Ingledue and Mrs. Tight reported on behalf of the hotel committee that about $35,000 in cash and notes had been collected on stock subscriptions, with some of the committees yet to be heard from, and they expected the matter could be put in escrow Saturday, the 10th, the day the option expires. On behalf of the sub-committee, H. L. Finlay said that three architects are working on plans for the proposed hotel, which will be submitted within the next ten days or two weeks, with sketch of the building as it will appear, to be submitted to the full committee; that these architects have agreed to finance the hotel when the lot is paid for.

Dr. Stuart reminded the association that the council had asked for an expression from Glendale avenue residents relative to street lighting, inasmuch as the question of how special lighting shall be financed is one of the matters which will be voted upon at the next election, and the association voted for the appointment of a committee of three to secure such an expression.

BELLEHURST TRACT PLAT IS ADJUSTED

Adjacent Property Owners Are Pleased With New Lines

Harmony was reached at the meeting of the city council Thursday night between Walter H. Leimert, who is subdividing the Bellehurst tract, and property owners south of and across the wash from that tract with regard to the locating of the streets through the Bellehurst subdivision.

The plat as originally submitted to the council called for streets that did not correspond with the streets at the south side of the wash.

Last Monday night a number of property owners at the south side of the wash appeared before the council and protested against the streets being cut through the tract as proposed, claiming that such an arrangement would injure their property.

Last night these property owners went before the council in force and argued the case. Mr. Leimert was also present.

He informed the property owners that he did not come to Glendale to antagonize anyone and that he wants to work in harmony with every person in the city. He declared he does not want to do anything that will injure anyone's property but that his desire is to increase the property values in this entire city by the excellent improvements he will put in.

Mr. Leimert then offered a compromise. He agreed to make the streets of his tract correspond with the streets on the south side of the wash and to curve the streets of his tract so as to make as little change as possible in the original plan of his company. This plan was entirely satisfactory to the property owners on the south side of the wash and "all hands" were satisfied.

Councilman Stephenson then moved that the map as corrected be accepted and this was voted on favorably by every member of the council.

JUDGES SECURED FOR MONROVIA DEBATE

After considerable difficulty and much effort on the part of the secretary of debating, judges have been secured who will serve here tonight in the dual debate with Monrovia on the question: "Resolved, that France was justified in entering the Ruhr valley." Mullen, head of the English department of Lincoln high.

Charles Worley and Betty Higgins are to debate the affirmative side here against Fred Spellacy and Shields Maxwell of Monrovia.

Paul Cunningham and Fred Peck will journey to Monrovia to present the negative side against Fred McKinzie and John Mendenhall of that city.

WARREN HAS BIG EGG STORY—BUT HE HAS NOT SHOWN

Talk about eggs!

You know Sam, don't you—Sam Warren, manager of the Glendale-Verdugo park?

Well, Sam has an Ancona hen—or, rather, a series of hens—that are really good. They are prize winners, although never entered in a show.

About six months ago, when the first of these hens reached the age of accountability—six months—Sam went out into the hen yards and what he saw almost scared him to death. Right there in plain sight, cuddled beneath one of the oak trees was a mammoth egg—a genuine, sure-enough egg. The next morning there was another, and the next, still another.

Sam says this big egg stuff has grown to be a habit with these Anconas. They recently took a post-graduate course along this particular line and the type of "hen fruit" they are producing now is beyond argument.

One of the most recent achievements along the production line of one of these young henlets measures 7 inches one way and 8 inches the other. Eggs of this size are nothing unusual at the Warren eggery.

Sam says he's going to take a couple of his hens over to the Cawston Ostrich farm and have them give the birds over there a few lessons in production.

ROTARIANS HAVE ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

David Roth Demonstrates What Can Be Done With the Memory

The first anniversary of the Glendale Rotary Club was celebrated with 100 members and guests present. A short business session was held, with Roy Kent presiding. This was followed by talks given by a number of the visitors and also toasts from the following: Arthur Dibbern, "Looking Forward;" Jim Newton, "Does Membership in the Rotary Club Tend Towards Making Better Men and Better Citizens?"; Owen Emery, "Is it Worth While?", referring to the activities of the club during the past year; and Rev. E. E. Ford on "Friendship."

The Burbank Rotary Club was well represented and frequently called on by France Henry, who led the community singing, to give a demonstration of their singing abilities. A Knabe Ampico piano and demonstrator were furnished by the Fitzgerald Music company. The members were entertained during dinner by harp selections and also piano numbers by Mrs. Ghrist.

The demonstration given by David Roth, memory expert, was very unusual and enjoyable. The entire program was in charge of the board of directors of the Glendale Rotary Club.

The visiting Rotarians included Dave Ross of Los Angeles, Leon V. Shaw of Pasadena, George Byers of Champaign, Illinois; the following from Burbank: J. C. Crawford, president; S. W. Sanderson, secretary; Ray Spence, J. Swall, Andy Fillbach, Phi Veiss and D. B. Cummings, and other guests.

The Hub Pharmacy, at the corner of Glendale avenue and Colorado robbery, was reported to the police department by the proprietor.

An attempt was made to enter the Park Avenue pharmacy at the corner of Park avenue and Brand boulevard at about 2 o'clock this morning. The side door was partially broken open. The thieves were scared off by Patrolman Baugh.

FIRST YEAR OF Y.M.C.A. IS MARKED

Two Hundred and Fifty Attend Annual Dinner

HAS CASH BALANCE

Work Since Glendale District Was Organized Is Told

BY GERTRUDE GIBBS

Citizens of Glendale to the number of 250, parents for the most part, came together at the First Methodist Church Thursday evening to celebrate with a dinner, followed by songs and speeches, the first anniversary of the organization of Y. M. C. A. work here as a separate Glendale district. David Black, chairman of the district committee, presided; Rex Kelley, secretary, submitted a report of recent activities; C. D. Lusby, treasurer, presented a report of receipts and expenditures, which showed a cash balance of $1666.09; R. F. Kitterman, chairman of the nominating committee, reported, and a board for the coming year was elected as follows: David Black, C. W. Ingledue, H. L. Finley, W. F. Tower, J. S. Thompson, Park Arnold, all of Glendale, and Dr. T. E. McGuire and T. E. Stevenson of Burbank.

A men's quartet composed of Dr. C. R. Lusby, Dr. P. O. Lucas, and the Butterfield brothers, sang two numbers, and then came the program of speeches which began with short informal talks by boys who have been active in the work. Dave Fisher spoke for the graduate Hi Ys and told how he was first attracted to the organization and what it had meant to him in higher ideals of life and purpose and contacts with a fine group of men and boys. Fred Peck, who represented the present Hi Y, dwelt on the spirit of fellowship and what it had meant to him coming to Glendale as a stranger and Spanish-American, especially the state conferences he had attended where a new vision of internalism and the brotherhood of races had come to him. Little George Bray of Burbank, spoke for the grade Y's and the "Why Notchers," of which he is a member, telling of the good times they have.

Dr. Henry Rasmus, pastor of the host church, paid a great tribute to Secretary Kelley as the best expression of the Y. M. C. A. secretary he had ever known, and voiced his satisfaction in the work being carried on in Glendale, protesting all the while over being limited to a 3-minute speech. He introduced William Lawrence of Long Beach with many flowery compliments which Mr. Lawrence endeavored to discount, and Mr. Lawrence in turn introduced the real orator of the evening, Frank Roach, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist Church of Long Beach, who is the special and sympathetic advocate of boys as "one of them in spirit," and whose theme was "Boyville."

It would not be fair to make any real report of this witty and brilliant talk which will long linger in the memories of those who heard it, and which may sometime fall upon the ears of others who were not there.

The speaker acknowledged his Irish ancestry and a boyhood of poverty which made him dependent upon his own earnings from the age of 12. He told many amusing reminiscences of his adventures as leader of a gang of Irish, Swede, Italian, Negro and Armenian boys, declaring the only real democracy is to be found in Boyville, and that Boyville is to be found in every town by those who have eyes to see and hearts to beat in sympathy. He told of the very few helping hands held out to him and of the message which led him up and out from the lips of a dying woman. He ended with a strong plea to the men present to give service for boys under the banner of the Y. M. C. A.

The meeting closed with prayer by Dr. Julius Soper. It had been enlivened by some fine community singing led by Mr. Meyer, a newcomer in Glendale, and by the battery of yells put up by the rival campaign teams, "Live Yers," under W. A. Horn, and "Go Getters," under C. W. Ingledue, who complimented each other by presentations of green kale which found a place in the Spizerinktum loving cup, and who finally "buried the hatchet" of their rivalry by clasping hands across the table.

A fine dinner was served with wonderful efficiency by women of the First Methodist Ladies' Aid.

SCHOOL TRACK TOURNEY OPENS ON MARCH 19

Next week Thursday the dual track meets between elementary schools will end and the big track tournament in which all the schools will compete will take place the week following. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 19, 20 and 21, will be given to grade school events, and on Thursday and Friday, the 22d and 23d, the intermediate school divisions will have their day.

At the present time Columbus and Broadway appear to have a little bit of an edge over the other schools, but experts say you never can tell how far pep and determination will carry boys when a track meet is on. Never has there been such close competition nor have honors been so evenly distributed as this year and for that reason the tournament has great surprise possibilities.

ARE YOU SAVING YOUR LABELS? THEY MAY WIN YOU $250

Two Hundred and fifty dollars in gold free. Yes, that is what the Glendale Press is going to distribute very soon to several alert persons for a little time devoted to saving labels of goods advertised on the Consumers' Page, which appears on each Thursday in the Glendale Daily Press.

L. A. POWER BILL STIRS FIGHT IN LEGISLATURE

The County Delegation Attacks Measure As Detrimental to Other Cities

SACRAMENTO, March 9.—Thirteen of the fifteen members of the Los Angeles county delegation in the state assembly today signed resolutions condemning senate bill 503 introduced by Senator Lyon of Los Angeles county, which bill would permit Los Angeles city to acquire by condemnation water and power rights and developments outside of the city. The text of the resolution follows:

"Whereas, senate bill 503 proposes to permit political divisions or subdivisions to arbitrarily condemn and confiscate property already appropriated to a public use or purpose for another public use or purpose and,

"Whereas, senate bill 503, if enacted would enable the population of the centers actuated by unwise or selfish motives to seriously jeopardize the interests, progress and expansion of districts containing population minorities, and,

"Whereas, senate bill 503 in a particular instance proposes to place in the hands of the Los Angeles city bureau of power and light autocratic authority inimical to the people of Southern California outside of Los Angeles city, in that this measure, if enacted, will permit Los Angeles city to confiscate and utilize present and potential power and water rights now being and in the future to be used to promote the well being, industries, growth and prosperity of such centers of wealth as Riverside, Redlands, San Bernardino, Santa Ana valley and Imperial valley, and,

"Whereas, senate bill 503 does not in our judgment represent the will or the best interests of the people of Los Angeles city or county, and its presence in the legislature at this time gives rise to misapprehension, suspicions and resentment on the part of the people of Southern California outside Los Angeles city, now therefore be it

"Resolved, that we, members of the assembly from Los Angeles city and county in the legislature now convened, do hereby condemn and pledge ourselves to oppose passage of senate bill 503 or any other measure of like purpose."

JENSEN'S PALACE RECREATION CLUB OPENS SATURDAY

To Be Equipped With Bowling Alleys and Billiard Tables

Almost beyond description in magnificence are the headquarters of the Glendale Recreation Center and the Glendale Recration Club, located in the Jensen Palace Grand Shops building, 133 North Brand, which will be open to the public at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 10. It is the concensus of opinion of all who have seen the rooms of this club and center that they are without doubt the finest features of the kind in Southern California, not excepting the most elaborate to be found in Los Angeles.

The quarters of the club consist of a main alley and table room, in which there are five of the finest alleys procurable, comprising all of the very latest features, seven billiard tables of the very finest quality, observation seats, cigar stand and other features. In the room, connected to the main hall and under the entrance to the building are three other billiard tables. All of the alleys and tables were secured from the Callendar Balke company.

The ceiling and walls of this room are finished in jazz plaster, which is now so popular. The ceiling is cream while the walls are dark cream and gold. All of the decorations of the room are along the Egyptian line and in the freize and the wainscoating this idea is also carried out. This work was done by John Powers, artist.

On the mezzanine floor is a ladies' rest room, which is complete in every detail, and is equipped with comfortable wicker chairs. These, in conjunction with the general surroundings, are unusually restful and appealing.

The club maintains a public comfort station, with toilet rooms, the appointments of which are of the highest type procurable. This is located at the rear of the building with entrances from the main floor.

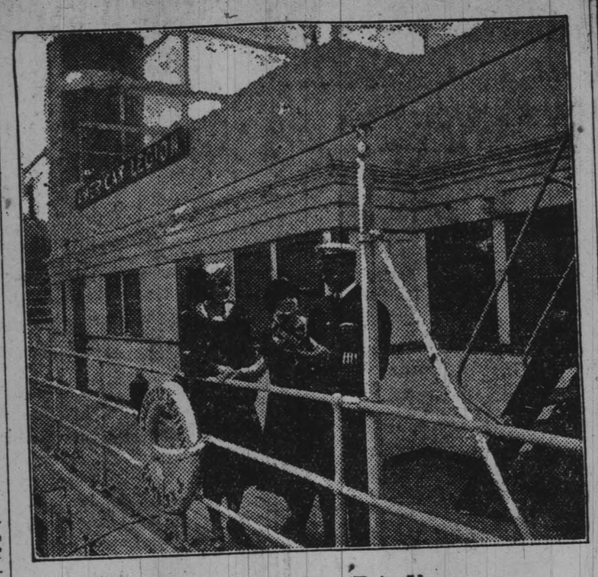
Throughout the rooms are illuminated with indirect lighting from Egyptian fixtures. The general atmosphere of the quarters is quiet and restful, and the entire feature is one of which the people of Glendale may be proud.

A big bowling tournament has been scheduled for Saturday night. At 7 o'clock the Glendale bowlers will take on a crack team from Hollywood. This is guaranteed to be one of the highest class bowling matches obtainable.

At 9 o'clock there will be a challenge match between the Caswell Gateway team and the Jensen Drug Store team, which is promising to develop some surprising talent.

The public is invited to witness these contests.

Fair Travelers on Ocean Steamers Becoming Better Versed in Sea Lore



Sextant Explained to Fair Voyagers.

New York, There was a time, and not so many years ago at that, when skippers of large passenger vessels, carrying women tourists, often dreaded putting to sea, because of the gauntlet of questions they would have to run concerning things nautical. Captains of the Munson liners plying between New York and South American ports, which carry many fair passengers, are finding, however, that the modern women are much better versed regarding ships and other things pertaining to the deep, than were their sisters of a few years ago.

The captain is no longer asked, just before the vessel crosses the Equator, "Will the ship bump much when we go over the Line?"

Nor is he called upon to explain that the rudder steers the ship, and not the compass; or that there are no crows kept in the "crow's nest."

It seemed that women never did read anything about the sea before going for a tour, and that once aboard ship they decided to make up for lost time by firing queries at the captain every minute he was off the bridge.

For some reason or other this order of things has changed of late, and now the women are apparently as well versed concerning the operation of a steamship, the methods by which the craft's location is arrived at, the nautical terms one hears at sea, as the male passengers.

When an officer is working with his sextant nowadays he is not apt to fear that some sweet thing will steal up on him and ask, "Are you shooting the sun with that little bit of a gun, Captain? I don't see how it can be possible."

Instead, the passenger is apt to have a bit of real knowledge of the use of the instrument, and to be really interested in its value to the navigator.

All of which is keeping a lot of Munson Line captains from getting prematurely grey.

The fact that the modern girl and woman desires to actually know things, to be able to talk on varied topics without having to ask innumerable and silly sounding questions, is one reason for this increase in nautical knowledge. The growing interest in books pertaining to the sea is another.

Perhaps the biggest factor in educating the female of the species in this direction, however, was the war. With hundreds of thousands of American youths in some branch or other of the naval service, phases relating only to the sea were introduced into the family circle and retained by the women folk, who learned their meaning from "gob" brothers, husbands or sweethearts.

But no matter what has brought the change about, it is the liner captain who is benefiting, who now welcomes sensible, sane questions, where once he dreaded a cross-fire of meaningless queries apparently designed to drive him to an early grave.

STENDAHL EXHIBIT IS STAGED AT P. T. A. MEET

Paintings From L. A. Galleries Are Shown in Glendale

An exhibition of oil paintings from the Stendahl galleries of Los Angeles, attracted considerable attention at the regular meeting of the Central Avenue Parent-Teacher association, held Thursday afternoon. Among the paintings exhibited are some by J. Kleitsch, Orrin White, Guy Rose, Edgar Payne, J. Wilkinson Smith, H. Tuttuff, Mr. Forsythe, John Frost, Paul Swan and Mr. Bergdoff.

Mrs. Henrietta Capp of Los Angeles gave a most interesting talk on "Interior Decorating," illustrating her speech with samples of draperies, pictures, etc.

A resolution was passed, which will be sent to the governor, asking that the schools be given fair play in the budget. Mrs. D. F Reichard, president, was in charg of the business session.

Plans were made for a card part to be given April 19, at the hom of Mrs. J. Kressman, 950 Nort Louise street, for the benefit of th association. At the close of th meeting refreshments were served

MRS. ANDERSON IS HOSTESS TO PARTY

MONTROSE, March 9.—Mrs. F. A. Anderson was hostess at luncheon last Wednesday afternoon at her attractive home on Miravista Avenue. Mrs. Anderson and guests later attended the matinee at the Majestic Theatre in Los Angeles. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. C. S. Thomas and Mrs. Fredric B. Poole of Los Angeles.

BUSINESS FOLKS FIND GOOD LUNCH

The business luncheon served every Thursday noon by the members of St. Mark's guild at the Episcopal church was attended by fifty people yesterday. In the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Mrs. A. A. Bassett, president, had charge of the guild meeting, when final arrangements were made for a food sale to be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at Gregg's Hardware Store. Mrs. F. S. Card will also have charge of a display of fancy work there and at each of the guild meetings, until Easter time, of Easter gifts. Two new members were admitted to the guild Thursday. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in sewing.

WILSON AVENUE PUPILS ENJOY QUARTET

The performance of the California Jubilee Quartet at the Wilson avenue school Thursday afternoon was attended by a large number of pupils from the various schools of the city and also a number of grownups, who enjoyed the varied entertainment provided by the quartet. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Wilson avenue school and will be repeated again on Monday evening, March 12, at the high school auditorium.

A very clever program of negro spirituals, plantation melodies, and cartoon pictures was presented by the quartet. The cartoon work of L. A. Morris, first tenor, was unusually good and was greeted with much applause.

WOMEN'S UNION ELECTS OFFICERS

At the regular monthly all-day meeting of the Women's Union of the Baptist Church held yesterday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Park Arnold, president; Mrs. Arthur Sisley, first vice-president; Mrs. J. L. Moody, second vice-president and chairman of the work committee; Mrs. Emma Sudlow, third vice-president and chairman of the social committee; Mrs. G. H. Rowe, secretary; Mrs. Grigg, treasurer.

The morning session was devoted to sewing. After luncheon at noon a missionary meeting was held and officers elected. Mrs. Jennie Doxsee gave a group of Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poems and the meeting was concluded with several musical numbers.

FROCKS FOR THE SMALL GIRL

Straight from Paris are the most exquisite little frocks for the small daughter. They are made of the sheerest voile put together by hand and with effective contrasts of color. One of white has strawberries embroidered on the skirt. Another has narrow bands of rose color inserted with fagoting. A third of peach color is bound with blue.

5000 GET JOBS THROUGH BUREAU

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—(A. P.).—The Community Placement bureau, a semi-philanthropic institution founded and directed by San Francisco business men for the benefit of the unemployed, will begin its fourth year here this week after becoming, in the opinion of its founders, a successful institution.

During its operations for the first three years, the bureau has placed more than 5,000 men and women in positions at a nominal fee, according to Mrs. Margaret O'Connor, manager. For the first two years, Mrs. O'Connor says, the bureau operated at a heavy loss, the burden being borne by its founders. The last year, however, the bureau operated at a profit, having placed 890 men and 2,130 women in positions.

"The bureau is orgapized to help the great army of unorganized workers, such as bookkeepers, stenographers, clerks, accountants, secretaries, office managers, and the general run of 'white collar' workers," said Mrs. O'Connor.

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Weakness

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means, drink lots of good water every day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Adv.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 9. (A. P.)—Today's stock market developed alternate periods of weakness and strength with closing prices irregular and the volume of sales materially reduced. Sales approximated 825,000 shares.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Opening prices in today's stock market were again irregular as the stock market continued to adjust its weakened technical position. Equipment and oil shares were in moderate demand but further heaviness was noted in the copper group.

Bullish demonstrations were carried on with success in the sugar group and in certain public utilities, equipment, oil and steel shares.

Price changes in today's bond dealings were again small and generally indecisive. Liberty 3½s and the fourth 4¼s dropping 10 and 16 cents on $100, respectively, and the others showing gains of 4 to 12 cents.

The strong spots of the industrial groups were United Railways Investment 5s and Marland Oil 8s, with Warrants, up 1⅝ and 1⅞ respectively.

HARRY JAMES IS BACK FROM TOUR EAST

Has Success With His Monologues With Gennett Co.

Harry James of the James Record Shoppe, Court Shops, returned Wednesday night from a two-weeks' business trip to Richmond, Indiana, where he made several records for the Gennett company. Mr. James' monologues and stories have met with wonderful success wherever presented, and his voice carried unusually well in the making of the records. Among the records made by Mr. James were the following: "The Englishman at the Ball Game," "The Englishman's Inappreciation of American Humor," "Is Marriage a Failure?" "When Knighthood Was in Bloom," "American Wit, No. 1," and "American Wit, No. 2," "Jokes Too Deep for an Englishman," No. 1 and No. 2.

According to Mr. James, the Gennett company is to distribute his records, both nationally and internationally. Another boost for Glendale and its colony of artists.

SILK PRODUCTION HERE

SAN JOSE, Calif. March 9.—(A. P.)—What is believed to be the first experiment in producing silk in commercial quantities in the Santa Clara valley is being attempted by L. H. Albertson on his ranch north of Santa Clara. A grove of mulberry trees has been planted and silk worms will be imported from the Orient in an effort to produce silk on a profitable basis.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream. —Adv.

LONDON DOG SHOW HAS BIG ENTRIES

LONDON, Feb. 19. — (A.P.) — There was a world's record of 5,766 dogs at this winter's annual show at Agricultural Hall, Islington. They came from all parts of the country and included enormous Great Danes and Alsatians down to the tiniest Pekingese.

King George exhibited some fine Labrador retrievers and won first prize with one of them. The entries indicate that the breeding and keeping of Alsatians is on the increase, there being over 500 of this breed as compared with 20 in 1918. Of the terrier class, Sealyhams appeared to be the most popular, but were run close by Kerry Blues, which have come into favor very quickly since their first appearance at the Crufts show last year.

St. Bernards, mastiffs, bloodhounds and other big dogs were numerous, but perhaps the dog which attracted most attention was a long-haired Dachshund, a variety hitherto practically unknown in England.

"And, then," continued Jones, "I told him that he was a dirty bum and liar, and that if I ever saw him again I was going to knock the daylights out of him."

"He is rather bigger than you," remarked Brown. "It's wonderful that he didn't take a swing at you."

"Oh, I was going to tell him more, too," continued Jones, "but central cut off the connection."

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

I do not wonder at Peter B. Kyne's outburst against scenario writers who mutilated his stories so shockingly and producers who refused to allow his presence at rehearsals so he could protest against some of the travesties. Every book-lover has at times been disgusted at the mal-versions of stories he has loved for years, by writers who apparently knew nothing of history and thus jumbled up scenes and characters very offensively. A case in point is the screen travesty on Mary Johnson's "To Have and to Hold." Every scene in this book is staged on American soil or islands near the coast, yet in the screen caricature both the opening and the closing happenings are located in England, at the court of King James I, who, by the way, is pictured as a man of about 40 years, when, at that time, he was much nearer 60, and a prematurely old, infirm man. And, worst of all, Shakespeare is dragged from the grave in which he had lain for four years (he died in 1616 and the action of the book began in 1620), and set before the audience as a man in middle life. Surely the retiring, gentle spinster-author, Miss Johnston, must have been shocked at the way in which her chivalrous, seldom-speaking hero, Capt. Ralph Percy, is transformed into the free-speaking and at times loquacious character of the movie version. The play is beautifully staged and the acting is superb, but there is very little reminder of the book beyond the retaining of the title and the names of a very few of the characters.

People who contend that the world is growing worse every day and point to the recent great increase in crime as proof, forget a few things. They should remember that there are many more people in the world now than 50 years ago and that there are many more newspapers to set crimes before their readers. I think it can be easily proved that in proportion to population, crimes are far fewer than they were 50 years ago, 100, 200, 300 or 400 years ago. There is more ingenuity in crime than formerly, but that is necessary, for officers of the law are more intelligent and the people against whom crimes are committed are more watchful. But, 100 years ago many preachers were hard drinkers, many of them profane and some of them devoted their week days to fox-hunting, cock-fighting and like sports, keeping their religion for Sundays only. Fifty years ago many preachers chewed tobacco, even in the pulpit, and many of them smoked. Today, there is hardly a religious denomination in the country that would tolerate a minister who drank, smoked or chewed. Today, the average minister gives all his time to good works and the preparing of his sermons. Raffles and other kinds of gambling were formerly sanctioned by many church people who held that the end justified the means. Today, gambling is as much tabooed in most churches as any other crime. Going back farther in history, Edward the First, who was King of England in the latter part of the thirteenth century and died early in the fourteenth, though a mighty man of war, and, in the main, a wise ruler, was a wholesale murderer and robber. He trumped up a false claim to the whole of Scotland, sent armies there to rob, murder and imprison, then doomed to cruel and disgraceful death the immortal William Wallace, the purest patriot that ever lived. After securing his capture by the foulest treachery, he condemned him to be beheaded, his body divided into four parts and set up as spectacles at the four corners of the kingdom. He was dragged to the place of execution at the tails of horses and his head was exposed on London Bridge, to remain for years. When this cruel king died he left instructions that his heart should be removed from the body and sent to the Holy Land; the body should be boiled and the flesh removed and buried; and that his bones shoule be carried at the head of every army that should invade Scotland. He and Robert Bruce, Scotland's king, had been comrades in one of the crusades and Bruce had saved his life on one occasion. Yet he ruthlessly sought to steal his kingdom from him. Would such a monster as this king be allowed to rule any civilized land in these days? And would a Richard the Third, a Henry the Eighth, a Bloody Mary or a Charles the Second be possible now? Maybe in Turkey or Russia, but certainly nowhere else in the world, not even in darkest Africa. Compare those times with the present and then dare to contend that the world is not a million times better than it was then!

The average American is very impatient of restraint in pronunciation of foreign words and even shortens words and phrases in his own language wherever possible. The early French conquerors of the wilderness applied names to places, rivers and objects that the Americans who followed them mutilated unmercifully, sometimes very amusingly. For instance, in Michigan, a section of forest that had been burned over was named "Bois Brule," (pronounced Bwaw Broolay). But the Yankee settlers quickly changed it to Bobrooly; And Bois Blanc (Bwaw Blawng), meaning "White Forest, or Woods," they called Bobolo. A western stream called by the French Riviere des Ombres, "dark river," because of its being so shaded by trees of thick foliage that it was always dark and gloomy, was transformed into Zumbro River. A word often used in the early days and still common, "shanty," is a corruption of the French word chiente (sheongtay), meaning, literally, dog house.

A city ordinance prohibits the beginning of construction on a building until a permit is secured, prescribing as penalty the doubling of the permit fee. Violations are very common, but did you ever hear of the penalty being enforced?

I feel moved to again call attention to the duplication of street names in Glendale. Many delays of mail matter are sure to result, as has been the case heretofore in Glendale, and in many other cities of the nation. When so many streets were re-named a few years ago, this duplication was almost entirely eliminated, but as new subdivisions are laid out, more "repeats" get by. It was commendable that Laurel avenue was changed to Allen avenue when the section in which it is located was annexed to Glendale, for we have a Laurel street. But it certainly was foolish to allow a Virginia avenue above Kenneth road, when there is a Virginia place between Park and Acaccia avenues, and a Chester place in the Kenneth road section when there is a Chester street on the west side. But worse than all, we have Harvard street, Harvard drive and Harvard court. With many thousands of names to choose from, it is a pity that one only should be picked on as the designation of three different streets in one small city.

When you book lovers grow tired of the hectic modern novel, with its sex problems, detective puzzles and erotic love passages, turn for real pleasure and refreshment to the works of James Fenimore Cooper, one of America's finest writers, whose descriptions of the scenery of early days cannot be surpassed. In "Oak Openings," he describes a part of Michigan on which Kalamazoo now stands, and the country to the east and north of it; in the five books called "The Leatherstocking Tales," he paints a vivid picture of the gradual change from a wilderness forest, lakes and streams in their pristine freshness and beauty, inhabited almost solely by savage Indian tribes to the status of advanced civilization. The region described in the latter is in New York state, extending from Otsego Lake, the "Glimmerglass" of "The Deerslayer," first book in the series, to Lake Champlain and the Hudson river. His description of the unending forests, the limpid brooks and meandering rivers, the placid lakes in their setting of stately pines and oaks, are so clear and vivid that you can almost see them. Another series that shows the marvelous progress made in "York State," in little more than a century, is "The Littlepage Papers" a series of three books: "Satanstoe," "The Chainbearer," and "The Redskins." The opening scenes are in New York, then, in 1737, a town of less than 50,000, occupying the lower end of Manhattan island only. The first book also deals with the purchase, from the king and also from the Indians, of 40,000 acres of virgin forest, on the west side of the Hudson river, from Albany to the Canadian line, and the closing chapters have to do with stirring events following the disastrous defeat of Abercrombie's British army of 15,000 men by a French force of less than 5,000, at Ticonderoga. Then the land was young and settlers few. The owners of Mooseridge, as the newly acquired property was named, needed renters and they bought them, practically, leasing farms for a term of three lives (that is, until all three of the persons selected by the renter should die, be it 10 years or 80) at sixpence a year, also giving them the timber they wished to cut from the land for lumber. In the last book of the series, in time about 100 years later, the descendants of the first renters and many other tenants of later occupancy, lay claim to the lands they rent, by virtue of long lease tenure. But the beauty of the writings is in the many descriptions of the country in those early days. A remarkable feature of the three books is the appearance in all of them of two characters, a negro and an Indian, who live to be more than 120 years old. Get all the books named if you can, and enjoy some real American literature.

How many of you old-timers remember the day when specie payment was resumed in 1879? I was clerking in a grocery store then and previous to that date, we had nothing but paper money, "shinplasters," some people called it, except that there were one-, two-, three-, and five-cent pieces. I remember how the money drawers would be stacked high with paper 10c, 25c, 50c, $1, $5, with occasionally a 15c and 5c bill. These latter were not often seen, however. Much of the paper money, especially that in denominations of $1 and less was ragged and filthy. It certainly was a relief when the silver 10c, 25c, 50c and dollar pieces came into common use, and gold fives, tens and twenties were occasionally seen. There was one issue of 20-cent silver pieces but this caused so much trouble on account of it being so near in size to the quarter that none but the single issue was struck. Then there was a silver 3-cent piece that was common, also a silver half-dime. Cent pieces were made of copper and also of a nickel-alloy, some of these latter with a flying eagle on one side. In those days, sugar sold at 12c to 15c a pound, green coffee (there was no commercial roasted coffee then) at 15c to 20c, tea 60c to $1.20, sorghum 40c, syrups 25c to 40c, vinegar 15c to 20c, eggs 5c to 10c in the spring season. Vegetables were not sold in the country stores then. Every family had a garden. There were no paper sacks, no cash registers and the telephone had just arrived. No homes had them and very few stores. The changes in the 44 years since that time have certainly been marvelous.

"Now, my good man," said the prison visitor, sympathetically, "what brought you here?"

"It was mistaken confidence," ma'am," responded the convict.

"Really," returned the visitor, "and in whom were you deceived?"

"In myself, ma'am" said theman, "I thought I could run faster."

VOLGA OUTLOOK IS VERY GLOOMY

Typhus Has Appeared This Winter and Claimed Thousands

SAMARA, March 9.—(A. P.)—Typhus, which scourged the Volga valley and claimed thousands of victims from one end of Russia to the other last year, has appeared this winter only in scattered localities and, unless the unexpected occurs, medical authorities consider the danger of epidemics on a vast scale is ended.

There are several areas in the Volga valley and the Ukraine where the 1922 harvests fared poorly, and in these famine already is raging again. Nothing like the terrible conditions of the ghastly winter of 1921-1922 exist, however, and although eight million persons are listed as needing complete or partial support by charity, even the most pessimistic observers do not expect that the horrors will be repeated in the proportions of last year.

The Ice Man speaks with authority.

It is notoriously true that in districts where ice is seldom used—New York tenements, for instance—there is more than the usual amount of sickness.

Plenty of ice all the time means fresh, wholesome food all the time. And good health is largely dependent upon good food. There is no other way to look at it.

SECTION 3. The City Engineer is directed to make a diagram of the property affected or benefitted by the proposed work or improvement as described herein, and to be assessed to pay the cost and expense thereof. Such diagram shall show each separate lot, piece or parcel of land, and the area in square feet of each of said lots, pieces or parcels of land, and the relative location of the same to the work proposed to be done, all within the limits of the assessment district, and such other matters as are required by law.

SECTION 4. All Plans referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Engineer of said City. All Specifications referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City. Said Plans and Specifications are hereby referred to for a more particular description of said work and made a part hereof.

Truths in Epigram

No man ever arrived suddenly at the summit of vice.—Juvenal.

They shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks.—Old Testament.

There never was a good war or a bad peace.—Franklin.

A peace is in the nature of a conquest; for then both parties nobly are subdued.—Shakespeare.

JUST A TRIFLE JEALOUS

Business men of high standing come from the eastern coast to southern California every year. Season by season they note the extraordinary growth, and the future of this region is clear to them. But the east as a whole does not realize the stride at which the Pacific side of the continent is going ahead, nor that prosperity is more manifest in this region than in any other part of the country.

Only recently a great merchant with interests in many places said, "You people out here do not know what you have. Right in this place is to be the future London of America."

He had in mind the community that would be embraced in a circle drawn about Los Angeles. Such a circle would take in a dozen thriving cities, each now wholly independent. It would include a stretch of the most beautiful beach. Within it would be a great harbor to which more and more is being drawn the commerce of the seven seas. Big men, practical and successful men, understand all this, for they know what they see.

To the vast majority of New Yorkers or Philadelphians the western half of the continent is terra incognita. Chicago they regard as balanced at the outer rim of civilization, and Denver lost in the wilderness. As to southern California, it is a land of dreams.

New York trade papers are chary about making record of facts easily obtainable. They hate to say that Los Angeles has more automobiles per capita than the metropolis. They fight shy of admitting that the average income tax paid in this district is higher than that of any other district in the United States. They are a little timid about setting forth the figures showing increase in manufacturing, in import, export, and returns to the customs office. In a dim fashion they are beginning to understand that an actual rivalry has begun. There is every prospect that Los Angeles, now fifth in population among American cities, will in a short time be third. Prophets are not lacking who say that ultimately the western giant is destined to lead all.

The reasons are plain enough for all who desire to investigate. Southern California is one of the few sections in which the climate is an actual asset. While by its suavity it invites, the opportunity it offers is not for the pleasure seeker alone. The land is productive. Wealth in varied form, the treasures of the earth and of the sea are available. Power is to be had cheaply and in unlimited quantity. Nearby is the Pacific terminus of the Panama canal. Facilities for shipment by rail and water are of the first class. Financial institutions are strong and alert, ready to supply funds for any legitimate enterprise. Much attention has been paid to education, the schools being the pride of the state. Fine roads stretch between producing areas and the markets, or give access to scenic wonders and delights.

This region does have advantages and is making the most of them. It is proceeding now with an impetus that nothing may check. But the east should not be jealous. The entertaining of so unworthy an emotion can't help it any, nor hinder the west.

ADVOCATING PEACEFUL METHODS

In proposing that the United States shall be represented in the Court of International Justice, President Harding is doing nothing but advocate peace instead of war. This is not a sensational course. The theory that this country should be in the world and not of it, although backed by vocally earnest individuals, lacks that firm basis constituted of common sense. They seek to map out an impossible course. Their error is so obvious that there appears no reason for attempting to analyze it. The people of America form a part of civilization. It is not to be conceived of that their government, the strongest in existence, could function alone, and unconcerned as to the welfare and conduct of the rest. Interests are interwoven too closely to be ignored.

Differences arise between nations. Under the present system they fight over them. The stronger wins. It is pleasing to believe that right makes might. To a certain extent it does. Nevertheless, had not the United States intervened at a critical time, right would have been crushed by a might that was entirely wrong. Relying upon arms to settle disputes does not invariably serve the purposes of justice. Neither does it lead to permanent adjustment. It engenders hates that may smoulder for a generation, and then flame out in the effort to be revenged.

Individuals, and groups of individuals embracing less than a nation, resort to the courts. There they present their evidence, and they must abide by the verdict. The wisdom of such procedure does not need defense. Nations should be at least as fair and intelligent.

There could not be any international tribunal operating successfully in the absence and aloofness of the largest and strongest people of all. Nations agreeing to the plan, naturally would be arrayed against the single one remaining obdurate. The obduracy might cause utter failure of the project. At least it would prevent complete success.

President Harding thinks that the United States, being a nation, should act in the manner of a nation. Why not? The proposition seems to be sound. There is scant utility in talking peace and maintaining an attitude such as to perpetuate the habit of resort to war.

Los Angeles police judges sent twelve speeders to jail in one day. Among the offenders were some guilty of having gone twenty-four miles an hour. The city is developing an unexpectedly high degree of caution.

HIGHWAY MANNERS

Much seems to be lacking in the manners of the bandit of the highway. Often he is startlingly abrupt. Also he is careless in the use of firearms. He ought to realize that a man separated by violence from his portable property is likely to be displeased, but for this the bandit makes no allowance. Furthermore his language often is offensive.

Since highway robbery became so common, persons knowing they were to be out late have acquired the habit of carrying very small sums. Recently a robber got all his victim had, and found the sum a paltry $15. So he shot the victim in both feet. Doubtless, had the sum been lacking altogether, capital punishment would have been visited upon the offender.

There seems no rule of conduct to be followed by the person whom the bandit halts. Whatever he does is likely to prove the worst course he could have taken. It is almost impossible to please the bandit, who in all probability is a drug addict and therefore notional and erratic. On the few occasions when the individual halted is armed, and is a good shot, and gets the drop on the other fellow, it is altogether proper and desirable to kill the intruder. Indeed, a standing reward for the carcas of a bandit might be promotive of safety.

Police have been rather lucky lately in potting bandits. There is no better disposition possible to be made of them. It is far better than to capture them, for then they have to be tried a few times, and if convicted, detained in the penitentiary only until the parole board can reach their cases and turn them out with worse manners than ever.

The prohibition commissioner is said to object to the use of women as dry agents. His theory is that the class of women who might be competent could not be trusted. Perhaps this does them an injustice. Nevertheless, so far as the character of the bootlegger has been revealed, it would be a mere propriety to guard women from contact with them.

A recent number of Collier's deplores the politics in the school system. It is not apparent that this course was based on inspection of California, however.

Jealousy indicates misplaced affection.

A Real Lesson from Wards Island

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The other day there was a fire in the insane asylum on Wards Island near New York City.

It was in a large brick building. Some lives were lost and there were many incidents of horror.

Dr. Frank Crane

Of course every one who heard of it was deeply moved. The first impulse was to find out who was to blame and to punish somebody. We still cling to the idea that the way to cure anything that is wrong is to hurt some one.

Others insisted that all such institutions should be made fireproof. The real wrong in this matter that needs to be righted, however, has not been touched upon as far as I have seen.

That wrong is the custom of putting insane people in some kind of prison barracks and locking them up.

The disease of civilization is THE HOUSE.

Nine cases out of ten of insanity are aggravated by confinement.

Of course some kind of a building where dangerous patients may be restrained is necessary. But the cure for mental disease in most cases will be much more rapid and sure if the patient is given as much liberty as possible.

There are state asylums which have large farms where the unfortunate inmates are given a great degree of personal freedom. I have visited such a place near Worcester, Mass. The results of this kind of treatment are extremely satisfactory.

The trouble with the institutional building is that it is the cheapest and easiest way to deal with the matter. But it is the worst way.

This is not only true of insane asylums, but of prisons. A hundred years from now our gloomy structures filled with rows of cells will be looked upon as relics of barbarism quite as much as the prison ships which were the floating hells of a former age.

Criminals, especially youthful criminals, should be got out into the open air.

Confinement is a device for the satisfaction of those outside of it only. As a means for curing those inside of it it is entirely bad.

Many an insane person who is violent when locked up is perfectly harmless when allowed to roam about, even though under limited supervision.

Freedom is the first desire of all souls and there are few cases of either mental or physical impairment that are not made worse by repression.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

HOW A FAT MAN RUNS

He runs "real" fast, says a Chicago contributor to "The Right Word."

The anonymous letter from this correspondent takes issue with this column on the statement that one should not use real with the word fast; as, He ran real fast. "The right word", asserted the column, "is very."

But "Anonymous" maintains that "to run real fast" and "to run very fast" have two different meanings.

The correspondent continues, "Supposing a fat man ran to catch a car, we would say, 'He ran real fast, but he did not catch the car. That man ran real fast, but not very fast."

"The Right Word" disagrees with "Anonymous". The fat man might not have run very fast, it is true, but he certainly did not run real fast either, for it is contrary to the standard of good usage to use the word real in this manner.

The following examples illustrate the wrong and the right use of real:

1. Wrong: He had a real nice time.
1. Right: He had a very nice time.
2. Wrong: The speech was real entertaining.
2. Right: The speech was very entertaining.
3. Right: A real gentleman would not do that.
4. Right: A real friendship cannot be analyzed.

"Anonymous", in his letter, also mentions some common errors. The following is one of the commonest: "Everybody has got their overcoat on." The correspondent is right when he writes, "The right word is his, not their. Everybody is singular. But he did not call attention to the expression has got. Here is another error hardly less common than the foregoing. Right: "Everybody has his overcoat on."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

My friend comes and asks my advice.
There is a lot of advice sought in the world.
A lot of it is given.
Much of it is bad.
Little of it is used.

* * *

Many persons who ask for advice do not really want advice.

They want to be confirmed in some resolution previously made.

And of course that is not seeking advice.

For advice is the expression of belief as to the wisdom of this course or that.

That is honest advice.

* * *

Most of the best advice in the world comes from within ourselves if we would heed.

It is the still, small and yet very clear voice of conscience.

Conscience is the infallible adviser.

It makes no mistakes.

It tells no untruths.

* * *

We begin to set foot on the wrong trail at the moment we stifle conscience.

Argue with conscience.

Fail to heed conscience.

Stultify conscience.

Disregard conscience.

* * *

For conscience tells us never the expedient thing to do.

The financially profitable thing to do.

The socially advantageous thing to do.

Conscience tells us always the right thing to do.

And there is no mistaking the voice of conscience.

Its terms of speech are truthful, definite, certain, clear, unmistakable.

* * *

So instead of seeking my friend, unless it be for advice in a matter of law or medicine, I shall seek advice of myself.

And I shall say:

"Conscience, here is the right thing to do.

Here again is the expedient thing to do. Here is the courageous and honorable thing to do. Here is the sly and advantageous thing to do."

And Conscience will not hesitate.

* * *

Conscience will say: "Do the right thing."

And if I say: "What is the right thing, Conscience?"

Conscience will reply: "You know that as well as I do."

And I do.

And so do you.

But the greedy self of me or the cowardly self of me or the ambitious self of me or the vain self of me seeks to dissuade me from the advice of Conscience.

* * *

And perhaps after a long time I know that I have taken the wrong road.

I am lost among the thorns and briars.

The way is steep and rocky and uncertain.

And what seems the fair way is now the foul one.

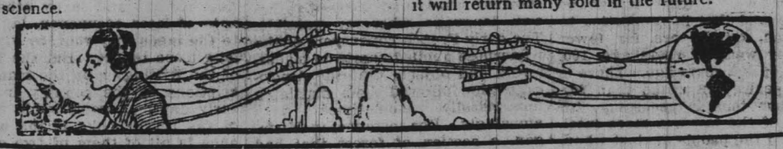
Because Conscience is the infallible guide and maker and blazer of trails.

* * *

For in any instance there is only one thing to do.

That is the fair thing, the honorable thing, the courageous thing, the clean thing, the decent thing.

And however much it costs in the present, it will return many fold in the future.



Songs of the Poets

The Bugle Song—By Alfred Tennyson

The splendor falls on castle walls
And snowy summits old in story;
The long light shakes across the lakes,
And the wild cataract leaps in glory.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying:
Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O hark, O Hear! how thin and clear,
And thinner, clearer, further going;
O sweet and far, from cliff and scar,
The horn of Elfland faintly blowing!
Blow, let us hear the purple glens replying:
Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.

O love, they lie in yon rich sky,
They faint on hill or field or river:
Our echoes roll from soul to soul,
And grow for ever and for ever.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
And answer echoes, answer, dying, dying, dying.

INHERITANCE AND YE FAMILY FIGHT

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

When I see the misery caused by quarrels about who is to spend money after the custodians of it pass along to a new stage of existence, or whatever it is that awaits us beyond this world, I wish inheritance laws could be blotted from our statute books.

When you catch your breath I'll explain.

To begin with our inheritance laws are either stupid or unjust.

Throughout the Union legislatures and various organizations are trying to amend them in the interest of justice and family harmony; but in their present condition they are more potent for misery than the matrimonial triangle.

Let any two middle aged people marry and, unless they are both childless, a tug of war begins prompto for the control of the loaves and fishes. The man figures that if he can get his wife to deed her property to him he can pass it on to his children. She figures the same way and they fight their way out of happiness and into the divorce courts, meantime developing enough undesirable traits of character to send half a dozen couples into moral bankruptcy.

Recently a case of the kind came under my notice. An elderly man wanted a home; an elderly woman needed companionship. Each had enough to maintain one in comfort; but no sooner were they married than they forgot each other, abandoned all sense of justice and began to try outwitting each other in the interest of their respective children.

It was disgusting. Each came to see me and declared that their mutual life was H—— in capitals.

I told them they were making existence miserable for each other and that they ought to be ashamed of themselves. Not only were they practicing chicanery on each other, but each was instilling into the children the idea that it is all right to defraud somebody else if you do it with bullying rather than a gun.

If these two had nothing they would be happy. As it is neither will gain anything. There will be a divorce with ridiculous press comments and the children in whose "interest" they have been so merrily fighting will have the broken bits of a matrimonial wreck on their hands.

In the last analysis, husky children are vastly better off earning their own bread honestly than they are living off property that an elderly and misguided parent wrenched from the hands of a husband or wife who ought by law to have been denied the right to alienate property from the feeble hands of a companion of declining and unproductive years.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

VARIETY IN GRAVE ROBBERS

[New York Times]

How much sincerity is there in all the talk about the "sacredness of graves" and "respect for the dead" that has been started by the work now going on in the Valley of Kings?

The reality and strength of feeling is unquestionable when it comes from the relatives or friends of the recently deceased or in the cases of personages of importance who, while alive, were held in reverence or admiration by many people still alive. In other instances, except in countries like China, where ancestors are worshipped and are credited with power to punish the disturbance of their bones, graves are "desecrated" for any one of a hundred practical or financial reasons, with no real opposition and with hardly a word said about it.

Railways are not expected, or at any rate often are not compelled, to go around old cemeteries when to do so is inconvenient or expensive, and there are few growing cities in which one or more ancient graveyards have not been built over and forgotten—or remembered only by a few sentimentalists who want to be held particularly delicate and sensitive.

And no protests were heard this week when a presumably estimable sailor man was dug up and his "home" narrowly examined merely because some people said, and others thought it just possible that in the coffin were some smuggled gems. Archaeologists never have respected graves that were old enough to be interesting to them, and their "desecration" always has been much more thoroughgoing than that of other grave robbers. Yet archaeologists as a class think very well of themselves, and their claims to be gentlemen as well as scholars rarely have been disputed.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

HENRY JAMES

There are many persons to whom publicity is precious. They do not seem to care much how they get it. Apparently they would prefer to be arrested for beating a board bill than not get into the notice of their erring fellow mortals. However, it must be that some who are thrust constantly into the limelight would rather be elsewhere. They don't need the publicity.

It is peculiar that great importance should attach to the purported marriage engagement of two stars of the screen. Had they been engaged for a new picture, the subject might have legitimate interest. But merely to be engaged to each other, as such matters go now, isn't so much. Even to be married would be viewed as a transitory status for each. They would have the best wishes of many friends and admirers, but none, in all probability, would go to the extent of prophesying permanency.

Nevertheless columns and columns have been devoted to the wooing of two lights of stardom. There was an engagement—worth half a page; then the engagement was broken—worth a full page. Next the broken links were welded, the engagement good as new—worth a page and a half. This according to the estimate of one school of journalism.

As a matter of fact, bursting into the realm of fevered affection, and telling of the sweet and soothing spectacle of happiness enwrapping a pair of souls there, is a piece of impertinence. Such affair is worth a notice in the matrimonial column if it eventuates according to program. Prior to that time it is the personal concern of two individuals.

The Herrin slaughter is recalled by the trial of some of the alleged murderers of a score of men. Several of the defendants had been tried before. The evidence against them seemed to be complete, and yet the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal.

In the present trial at least one of the witnesses has pointed to three men at the bar as having been seen by him to commit the act of murder. By some juries such testimony would appear to be entitled to consideration.

* * *

Another interesting matter is the trial in a Louisiana court of a bunch of k. k. k. folk. They are charged with a double murder. The public is inclined to believe them guilty. This probably is because the methods of the mob that did the murder was so characteristically k. k. k.

The judge told the jurors that they were to ascertain the truth no matter what organization might be involved. Good advice surely. To follow it in a section dominated by the k. k. k. will require courage.

Somebody in Texas thinks to have discovered the cause of winter hay-fever, and blames the males of the cedar family. Therefore a legislator proposes the extermination of these dangerous masculine growths. Perhaps this is all very scientific, but it doesn't seem so.

When nature created trees male and famale, doubtless it had a purpose in so doing. It is quite a reasonable theory that the two were to be complements, each to the other. In the absence of the male it is not unlikely that the lady tree of the forest would get the sulks, and ultimately pine away. Then there would be no cedars in Texas. And it is a safe bet that there still would be hay fever.

The allegation of a telephone girl that application to her duties has caused her to have heart disease cannot be denied the full merit of novelty. Her statement has reference to the physical stress.

Quite uninformed as to this, the public really has an idea that the position is extremely trying, what with cranky and querulous patrons and all.

Sometimes the telephone girl by the sweetness of her voice, albeit a tired voice, and her wonderful patience, has come near to causing something to get the matter with the heart of the fellow at the other end of the line.

Death of a "human fly" as the result of a fall is simply an invited tragedy. The risk of life in the manner in which men of this type encounter it right along should not be permitted. It is true that the muscles and nerves may be so trained that the individual is able to climb up a blank wall. There is no reason for being possessor of such accomplishment.

Crowds that go to see the "human fly" in action always expect to witness his death. When they do witness it they wish they hadn't.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

From where I sat I could see that glassy look come in the eyes of the Big Chief. Then his thumb crept slyly under the edge of the desk. In Miss Morton's room the buzzer sounded twice. That handsome young woman tip-toed into the Big Chief's room.

"I'm sorry, sir," said she. "But you know you have an engagement at this hour—I dislike to interrupt you——"

The Big Chief shook hands with his caller all the way to the front door. On the way back he began to undo his collar and tie. He headed straight for the lounge in his inner office and the lock clicked tight. In three minutes the Big Chief was asleep.

"I'm to wake him at 4," said Miss Morton, glancing at the clock.

That's the way he keeps his strength and pep and force. He found out, years ago, that he could not do without his fair meed of sleep. Maybe Edison can do with four hours a day—and maybe Edison can cat-nap in his workshop. I do not know. But I know that for the most of us sleep is as necessary as air. If we go short of sleep we begin to lose the spark. The older we get, they say, the less sleep we need. But I find that I am still able to take my eight hours a day. When I get less I am below par.

Clemenceau knows this. Hence he goes to bed at 10 o'clock. President Harding knows it. He gets as near eight hours in bed as conditions will permit. Theodore Roosevelt could do without sleep on occasion, as can any vigorous man, but he did not permit himself to be robbed if he could prevent it. The Big Chief has found it out by experience. As he goes out somewhere every night and believes in being at the desk early each morning, he makes up arrears in the afternoon. I get home in time to snatch forty winks before dinner. It is more refreshing than the most talented combination of vermouths and gins.

Shakespeare said it first.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS OBSERVATION

OAKLAND, Calif., March 9.—(United Press)—April 27 will be an important day for the Veterans of Foreign Wars. That day has been set aside for observance as Americanization Demonstration day and all the posts in the California-Nevada department are busily engaged in preparations for the day's program.

One of the features of this program will be the announcement of the name of the winner of the National Americanization committee's essay contest for school children under 16 years of age. Ten prizes have been offered for the best essays on the Monroe Doctrine or on the life and value to his country of any great American. The only conditions are that the essay must be the work of a pupil in the public schools, and that the competitors must be under sixteen years of age. The essays must be in the hands of the chairman of the Americanization committee not later than April 2.

The Department of California and Nevada has announced that it will double the national prize to any winner from the schools within the department.

CAT'S COIFFURE IS LATEST FLAP

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—(United Press).—It's the cat's coiffure, the latest thing in flappers.

Chlorine is the cat. Chlorine is also the flapper. She is a flapper cat. She belongs to Miss Brunette Vanassi, popular vaudeville dancer, and even appears with her mistress on the stage.

Chlorine would be an ordinary alley cat if she were not a flapper. But in order to make her beautiful Miss Vanossi has given Chlorine a neck shave to make her hair look bobbed. She has rouged her lips, pierced her ears and given her earrings, and as a finishing touch has hung a beautiful jade necklace on Chlorine's shaven neck.

That's the meaow's marcel!

PUBLIC INTEREST IN EGYPT IS AROUSED

PITTSBURG, March 9.—(A. P.)—Douglas Stewart, director of the museum of the Carnegie Institute, reports the liveliest interest on the part of the public in the life of ancient Egypt. The discoveries in the tomb of Tutankhamen at Luxor have, he says, made the history of 35 centuries ago present day news. Public curiosity has been aroused in a civilization of which most people had never heard and the visitors are fascinated by the physical mementoes of a long-gone race.

The largest exhibit in the museum is the remains of a Nile boat of an admiral, buried with him, according to the custom of interring the tools of trade with the dead. There is not a nail in this boat. It is fastened together by wooden pins dovetailed into the timbers, and by thongs. It dates from 4000 B. C., 500 years before Tutankhamen's time, or 600 years before Abraham went to Ur of the Chaldees.

Even older is one of several kohl pots, made about 5000 B. C., which were used to contain eyelid paint for the Egyptian beauties of the court. It is covered with a very thin layer of pure gold, similar to the gold found in Tutankhamen's tomb by Lord Carnavon.

Bronze mirrors appropriately find a place beside the eye paint pots. Nearby a razor of the eighteenth century dynasty is seen to be of precisely the same model as the old style razor of today, working on a swivel handle, and proving that barbers shaved their customers 2500 years ago just as they do today. A group of fish hooks of 1580 B. C. constitute another exhibit where the design has not changed in 35 centuries.

The exhibits of ancient Egyptian pottery show that the shapes in use in the Egypt of today are exactly those used in Tutankhamen's time. The water pots have the same pointed bottom, necessary to press into the sand to keep them upright.

The exhibits in the Carnegie Museum are mostly from Tell-el-Amarna, the capital of Pharaoh Ikhnaton, which he built when his refusal to worship other gods than the sun god led him to leave Memphis. Tell-el-Amarna was abandoned on his death and the return of his ancestors to the ancient worship at Memphis. The site, which is 160 miles south of Cairo, was excavated by the Germans before the war and since then by the Egypt Exploration Fund, to which the Carnegie Museum of Pittsburg has contributed.

Beside a mummified baby, a number of mummy cases and several pieces of decorative art in which the designs and colors are as perfect as when they were first painted, the exhibit has mummified cats, several scarabs, one with an inscription from the Book of the Dead, and many smaller antiques of the different dynasties.

Director Stewart has added to the collection on display a copy of a beautiful necklace of the Princess Knoumit, which will be of value to designers of jewelry by affording them a true type of ancient Egyptian art, now being sought by modern fashion creators.

Beside the interest of the adult population, the public school children of the eighth grades are attending lectures by museum assistants, who find their juvenile auditors as keenly interested in the Pharaohs as they usually are in the exhibits of the American Indians.

ANOTHER ROYAL WEDDING IS REPORTED

Princess Fafalda, second daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, is reported engaged to his royal highness, the Duke of Brabant, heir to the throne of the Belgians. The official announcement of the engagemnt, it is said, will come shortly after the marriage of her sister, Princess Yolanda, to a dashing captain of cavalry in the Italian army.

OREGON PUPS HAVE SCARE

PORTLAND OREGON, March 9.—(United Press).—The pampered pooch is having his annual scare. Ross Churchill, humane officer and dog license inspector, has issued his regular spring ultimatum that all lap dogs and lounge puppies must have a license to operate, or it's the pound for theirs.

Dogs lolling in the lap of luxury in the sheltered seclusion of apartments, hotel suites, and handsome residences, who take their airing in limousines and yap peevishly through the plate glass front windows when a real dog passes in the street, must comply with the state law or they'll be levelled by the gas which recognizes no cast. Just how Churchill intends to rout them out he doesn't say, having a system of his own, but he hints that the rich man's collar is far safer than his dog when it comes to a point of law.

NET WEIGHT MEN FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, March 9. — Uncle Sam may have some concern over the prospects for the distance events at the next Olympic games, but he can have a feeling of almost perfect security in the young weight men that he will send to Paris.

When gray hairs began to splatter the dome of Pat McDonald and Mat McGrath and when the hard-to-beat hand of age began to take the punch out of their arms, American leaders grew worried about the prospect of filling the shoes of those two old gallant police whales.

When McGrath threw his knee out and had to retire at the Antwerp game and when McDonald was being trimmed by the huge Finns, Porhola and Nikalander, the feeling was general in the American ranks that some youngster would have to be developed in the next four years.

Since then three great youngsters have come to the front. They have developed to the point where they are worthy of stepping into the shoes of the old whales.

Ralph G. Hills, the Princeton football and field star, broke the indoor record for come within a few inches of the world's record of 51 feet.

Glenn Hartranft, the great California youngster, no doubt would have broken the world's record last season if he had not gone stale. He was within inches of the old mark early in the season last year, but he started to throw the discus, sprint and various other things and he got off edge before the intercollegiate championships came along.

California has another great youngster, "Bud" Houser, the high school star. He is a potential world record maker and he is almost sure to make the team.

Both Hartranft and Houser are almost as good with the discus.

* * *

In the hammer throw, the American team will again have the veteran champ, Paddy Ryan, who is still young enough to hold his own with the best of them. Among the new school is Jack Merchant, the California collegian, who ought to give Ryan and the Finns a big fight in Paris.

* * *

With Paddock, LeConey, Lovejoy, Woodring, McAllister, Scholz and Murchison around looking for Olympic suits, the prospects for a young sprinter are mighty slim. Frank Hussey, the sensational New York high school boy, has a chance to get in that select company if anyone has, however. Hussey has been coming so fast that he may force himself on the team, but he is so young that it may militate against him. He has a lot of time, as he will be only a junior in college when the next games roll around.

As for swimming—well, any nation with Johnny Weismuller and Norman Ross in its family should worry!

An English priest, Monsignor Bickerstaffe-Drew, has written his recollections of Cardinal Manning. The cardinal was evidently anything but a severe or lugubrious person. Being in Norwich one day during a heavy shower, Manning happened to take shelter in a chemist's shop in company with a very severe-looking lady. Wishing to say something apropos of the occasion or of Norwich he quoted: "The man in the moon came down too soon and lost his way to Norwich. The man in the south has burnt his mouth with eating of cold plum porridge."

"I hate a fool," remarked the austere lady.

STEVENSON'S PAL DIES AT PAPEETE IN TAHITI

PAPEETE, Tahiti, March 9.—(A. P.).—Donat, who spun weird tales of the native lore of the South Sea islands for his friend, Robert Louis Stevenson, is dead here. He was well advanced in years, but his exact age was unknown.

Donat was temporarily in charge of the government administration of the Paumotu Islands when Stevenson arrived at Fakarava, and he and the famous author became close, life-long friends. Stevenson would sit by the hour and listen to the tales of ghosts as told by Donat; tales of how, on a certain night each year, ghosts of the natives of long ago would gather in the Haamuta valley to sing and dance to the music of ancient flutes.

Stevenson's great, black eyes would glisten with excitement as he listened to these tales, Donat said. Speaking of Stevenson, Donat said before his death on Feb. 28, last: "Ah, that was a fine man; so kind, so gentle, so gracious to everybody. He was a true democrat."

Donat, in relating to a correspondent of the Associated Press the life led by Stevenson at Fakarava, painted an intimate word picture of the noted author. Stevenson, he said, would ramble along the beach and through the cocoanut groves, clad only in pajamas, barefooted and a great woven pandanus leaf on his head. He held kindly intercourse with the natives, whom he compared with the gods of Greece, and each evening he celebrated the close of a happy day with a bottle of champagne.

When Stevenson was aboard the Casco, ready to sail for the mainland, he gave Donat a diamond ring of great value. Donat said he refused to accept this souvenir of their friendship, asking for something of no great price, saying he would treasure it to the end of his days. As Stevenson's ship passed over the western horizon, Donat stood on the shore, holding a ring of no great monetary value, which he treasured to the day of his death as a gift from the great writer.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH

sent out an expedition which landed a colony on Roanoke Island, off the coast of North Carolina, in 1585. At Queen Elizabeth's suggestion the territory was named Virginia, after the "Virgin Queen," and became an English possession. These colonists were avid of gold, and in spite of Raleigh's assiduous attempts to make the holding permanent, the colony failed.

"I wonder what made them put this station so far from town," said a belated traveller to the solitary attendant.

"I never though about it, sir," was the answer, "but perhaps they thought it would be handy to have it as near the railroad as possible."

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE WORMS AND THE FLEDGLINGS

Up in the tree there was a nest
With fledgling birds in half undrest,
And both the parents birdies flew
To get them all a worm or two.

Down in the soft earth was a worm
Who wriggled on with twist and squirm.
And then the parent birdies flew
Down there and tore the worm in two.

They brought him back up to the nest
Where all the fledglings ate with zest,
And chirped and sang with merry glee,
That quite contented family.

They had enough to dine and sup
Before they ate the worm quite up,
And down their throats with slip and squirm
Went the last morsel of that worm.

Now think how thoughtful and how kind
Those parents birdies were to find
That juicy worm for those undrest
And hungry fledglings in the nest.

But Oh, I wonder what they thought,
Those baby worms in some dark spot;
Through all the days they wait in vain
For Daddy to come back again.

Editorials by the People

Editor, Glendale Daily Press:

The contest that has been going on in this state for the past thirty days over the "governor's budget" has now become centralized in Sacramento and is a "battle royal" in a fight to a finish between the contending forces. The real issue involved is not the "governor's budget," but the principle of the budget system of appropriating public moneys. The importance of this contest is of the first magnitude and should be of absorbing interest to all of our citizens.

The struggle now reaching its climax at Sacramento is precisely the same in principle as was fought out in the "Hell and Maria" contest at Washington a year ago, and President Harding had to contend with the pork barrel brigade then, and again in the last session of Congress, precisely as Governor Richardson is compelled to contend now with their kindred at Sacramento. Gov. Pinchot is going through the same kind of a contest in Pennsylvania. The elements of the contest are the same in all three places, and wherever a high minded executive resolves to enforce effective recognition of the fact that "public office is a public trust," demanding the same scrupulous regard in the use of public moneys that we all exact from a custodian of trust funds of a private nature. Wherever the attempt is made to make this principle effective in practice the "powers of darkness" are arrayed against it and from time immemorial, victory has usually perched on their banners. However, the fact that, at even this late day, the budget system has been forced upon Congress and is having its first try-out on a national scale, and that the leaven is working even in rock-ribbed Pennsylvania, encourages optimism at a time when we are witnessing an orgy of spending without precedent in all history.

But it has remained for California to present a novel spectacle in its manner of attack upon this forward step to protect the public treasury from the annual raids made upon it by the pork barrel brigade. Perhaps it is complimentary to public opinion in California that, to have any chance of success, it was thought necessary by the plunderbund aggregation to array itself under the sacred banner of our public schools and follow the leadership of astute politicians who have intrenched themselves in positions from which they have been able for some years to control practically all matters, not only professional but fiscal as well, relating to our educational institutions. It must be cause for profound regret on the part of all good citizens as they witness this amazing spectacle of this leadership of trusted educators in the assault upon the budget principle, for it is nothing short of that although camouflaged as a defensive campaign to protect the public schools from utter destruction by the governor of California! ! ! !

It is not conceivable that these higher-ups in school politics are themselves deceived in this matter, although it is manifest that they have succeeded in deluding some teachers and possibly a few members of the P.-T. A., who have hithertofore docilely permittee their opinions to be framed and their actions directed by these astute politicians. If the higher-ups are not themselves deceived as to the real nature of the contest in which they are engaged—and it is incompatible with respect for their intelligence to assume that they are—then the only alternative to that is that they are deceived in another respect, to-wit, the impregnability of the political machine which they have so carefully builded at largely public expense.

It has been said by some political philosopher that "every political organization contains within itself the elements for its own destruction." It requires only casual observation to discover that of these inherent T. N. T. elements of self destruction, lust for power is always present. Abuse of that power and over-confidence in their supremacy are certain ultimately to dethrone the political czars and with their fall the "machine" which they have so carefully builded disappears with the suddenness of the "Deacon's One-Hoss Shay."

In this assault upon the principle of the budget system under the leadership of political educators ostensibly to preserve our schools from destruction, there is a suggestion that these astute politicians may have learned by analogy a political lesson from military operations in the World War. It was said that German soldiers advancing upon strongly fortified positions in Belgium impressed Belgian non-combantants—old men, women and children—and used them as a vanguard of defense. Thus they were protected from fire from the defending forces because the defenders would not direct their fire when their own people would be first to receive the shot and shell. And so it seems that the usual aggregation of raiders on the public treasury have assembled behind the public school banners in the hands of school teachers, P.-T. A.'s and other kindred organizations impressed into service by the common enemy for the dual purpose of self-protection from direct fire and to conceal the multifarious charater of the enemy.
